THE 22ND STAGING of Asian Art in London will once more assemble forty-six resident and visiting dealers, galleries and auction houses in the capital. Located principally in the gallery districts of Mayfair, St James's and Kensington, a prodigious range of objects dating from antiquity to the present day will be offered for sale. Some specialist dealers will present curated exhibitions with a particular theme, whereas others will mount shows of recent acquisitions. This celebration of Asian art will include works from the Middle East, India, Southeast Asia, Central Asia, China, Japan, Korea and Vietnam.

Commercial exhibitions and auctions will be complemented by a programme of talks, demonstrations and related events at galleries and institutions across central London. Taking part will be the Oriental Ceramics Society, the British Museum, Asia House, the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Society of Antiquaries, and the Kelvingrove Art Gallery & Museum, Glasgow to name but a few. Visitors can also connect with fellow collectors and enthusiasts by joining organised 'gallery hops' around the city.
